Longsong comes to life within one of Melbourne’s most distinctive and special spaces - a second storey horse stable, last used in the mid-1900s, located above its sibling restaurant, Longrain, on Little Bourke Street.

Longsong’s delicious Thai-influenced menu is cooked entirely using the heat from a wood fire grill - with grilling, curing, smoking and slow cooking techniques, all to match an eclectic drinks list.

With exposed brick walls, soaring loft ceilings and original stable floors, the dramatic light-filled bar is set to present a comfortable, fresh and light-hearted space, designed to be a more casual compliment to the restaurant below.

For patrons looking to enjoy a bustling, convivial atmosphere with much to eat, drink, discover and discuss — Longsong provides tiny tables, bar seats and beer hall tables to do exactly so. Come inside and see for yourself.
With large concertina windows over-looking Little Bourke Street, The Yard is a light-filled space perfect for stand-up cocktail style events for up to 120 people.

Longsong’s wine, beer, spirit and cocktail offering is married to a philosophy of local and artisan, with a strong investment in Melbourne and Victorian wineries, brewers, distillers and wine importers.

The focus at Longsong is on high quality, handmade drink products that offer a spectrum of contemporary drinking, and deliciousness, that seamlessly marries with Longsong’s over-arching vision for drinking and dining. You’ll find younger generation wine growers and makers next to start up breweries and cottage-industry distillers.

Amongst the offering are bespoke vermouths, wines and spirits that have been tailored to Longsong as a reflection of the season and kitchen menu. Spritz’ underpin the cocktail menu, canned local beer the brewed products, and there is a strength in Victorian wine, including many available on tap.
